

HYMN NOTES:

“Love Divine, All Loves Excelling” (366)

Authored by Charles Wesley this hymn was first published in 1747. The current use of the term “parody” nearly always implies that the original work is being treated with disrespect or distortion. For Wesley however, parody became a way of claiming secular models for sacred purposes. Such is the case here. This now beloved and much used hymn was a reworking of a song by John Dryden from the fifth act of the opera King Arthur by Henry Purcell:

*Fairest Isle, all isles excelling,
Seat of pleasures and of loves;
Venus here will choose her dwelling
And forsake her Cyprian groves.*

Wesley’s reuse of this material—even retaining some of the rhyme words—was not to use something new and trendy (the opera debuted sixteen years before he was born) but an expression that nothing was beyond redemption or could not be used for God’s purposes. So a song by the mythological goddess of love can be adapted as a hymn celebrating the true divine Love.

PRAYER OF CONFESSION (together)

God of our hopes and dreams, we are empty, and long to be filled—yet we resist you. We are hungry, and long to be fed—yet we resist you. We are lost, and long to be found—yet we resist you. Dear Lord, forgive us. In your grace gather us into your love. In your mercy, just as Jesus picked up the fragments of the five loaves and two fish that remained after the feeding of the five thousand, pick up the pieces of our lives. Call us anew to eat our fill and to find our true nourishment in Jesus, the bread of heaven. Amen.

ANTHEM “Come to the Table” arr. Joseph M. Martin

*Come to the table, all who hunger, those who seek the Bread of Life.
Come to the table, all who are thirsty, those who are seeking living wine.
At the table, leave your burdens; lean upon the Savior’s breast.
Come to the table, all who are weary, come and find your promised rest.*

*Come to the table, bring your troubles; lay them at the feet of Christ.
Come to the table, all who are needy; God himself has paid the price.
To the table bring your sorrow; wipe each teardrop from your eye.
Come to the table, God is calling. All who come are satisfied.*

*Come to the table, all are welcome; Christ invites the world to dine.
Come to the table, Christian pilgrims, come and taste the bread and wine.
At the table there is plenty; ev’ry need will be supplied.
Come to the table, Christ is waiting, come and celebrate new life.
Come to the table, come!*
