

Hymn Notes:

"For All the Saints" (326)

The text was written by William W. How for All Saints' Day, 1864. It is a commentary on the phrase "I believe in the communion of saints" from the Apostles' Creed. The original hymn contained eleven stanzas, but most collections include six or fewer (Glory to God has five). The tune was composed by the great English composer Ralph Vaughan Williams (1872-1958) as the setting of this text in The English Hymnal, 1906. The name of the tune, SINE NOMINE, means literally, "without a name." The tune was at first rejected as being "jazz music," while the canon at Westminster, Percy Dearmer, stated that this tune is "one of the finest hymn tunes of the present century." Today most authorities agree with Dearmer. This marching tune makes a grand 'bookend' for "When the Saints Go Marching In."

The flowers in the sanctuary today are given to the glory of God by
